

Moving through Crowds

Sometimes I will be one person in a crowd. A crowd is many people sharing a space together.

Often crowds of people have to stand close together to share the space that is available. When this happens, it can be hard if one person has to get through the crowd to get to another place.

The best way to move through crowds of people is to say, “Excuse me.” When you say “excuse me,” it lets people know you would like to get by them.

Excuse me, please.

A “Thank You” afterward is also nice!

Thank
You!
